High School Annual Social Pleasing Event

Program Proved Most Interesting and Entertaining

"Backward, turn backward, oh time in thy flight; make me young again, just for tonight."

No doubt this thought ran through the minds of many parents who were present at the High School's Social evening held in Cliff Hall last Friday evening, as they gazed upon and listened to the vivacity, cheerfulness and talent and business like manner in which the program of the evening was conducted by the young people in charge of the event, and all those who took part in it.

The first impression as the guests entered the building paved the way for a most enjoyable evening as the members of the reception committee received the guests in a most courteous and friendly and pleasing manner.

The program opened with a guessing competition. In this photographs of statesmen, literary men and women, movie stars, sports and other distinguished persons were hung about the walls and the guests were to figure out who they were. Mr. A. R. Ballantyne won the prize.

Volunteers entered the tuition driving contest. This proved most amusing for the spectators. The prize was won by Debra Buchholz.

The reading of the High School "Edo" by Elsie Blades brought out some very cracks and many laughs.

The Broadfoot medal, emblematic of the championship at the Schools annual athletic sports was presented to Susan Skidmore, and the teachers medal to Reggie Rose as the runner up. High School pupils put on two mystery sketches and the spectators were asked to solve the problems. Debra Buchholz won the prize.

Dancing was then the order of the evening in which several were introduced adding much to the merriment of the evening. Among these the most amusing were the stargate dance and the confetti dance in which confetti was presented with paper caps, balloons, horns etc. and pandemonium was let loose.

The prize for the old fashioned waltz was won by Mr. Leonard and Miss Broadfoot and the spot dance by Mr. Balmer and Mrs. A. Patterson.

A delicious lunch was served at midnight, and when this

Local Christmas Trees Were Great Success

Local Programs Rendered on All Occasions

Christmas Tree entertainments which were held last week by Gordon Memorial and St. Ambrose Churches, and the Local Legion were most successful. All children in town were remembered by old Santa.

On all occasions interesting and appropriate programs of songs, recitations, musical selections, plays and short sketches were presented by the youngsters, much to the delight and enjoyment of the grown ups.

On each occasion the trees were heavily laden with all kinds of toys and eats and those in charge were amply rewarded by the way the youngsters showed their appreciation.

Keep in mind the Social Credit dance in L.O.O.F. Hall here on Tuesday evening. New Years Eve).

Rovers Go A'Roving

Here are five Canadian Rovers who sailed from the Canadian Pacific liner Duchess of York, in which they sailed from Montreal to attend the World Rovers Meet being held this year in Sweden. Rovers and Western Canada are represented by the five, who, left to right, are: L. P. Dunsbach of Westport, Ont.; Alvin Hixon of St. Paul, Minn.; A. B. Patterson, the owner of the Rovers, Ont.; Kinross Webster, of Edmonton, and A. C. Kesseler, of Saint John, N. S.

The Canadian Rovers will form part of a British contingent of 1,500 attending the Rovers Meet, or nearly half the entire number expected to attend. They will be in camp for six days at the headquarters on Jassare Island, not far from Stockholm. Elsewhere preparations have been made by the Swedish Rovers, hosts of the gathering, who are headed by Prince Gustaf Adolf, eldest son of the Crown Prince of Sweden. The camp will have a fire brigade, telephone system, post-office, hospital and will publish a daily newspaper in the four official languages of the Meet, English, French, German and Swedish.

The Swedish Meet will be the second World Rovers Meet. The first was held in Rotterdam in 1923. Two of the five Rovers in the above picture, A. C. Kesseler and Alvin Hixon, attended the 1923 Meet.

Eden Named Foreign Secretary For British Govt.

Is Strong Supporter of The League of Nations

The mantle of the foreign secretaryship in Britain now rests upon the shoulders of Anthony Eden and observers believe his appointment foreshadows steadfast support of the League of Nations by Great Britain.

His appointment has apparently ended the period of uncertainty and the flood of rumors which prevailed during the government crisis last week, over the speedily buried Anglo-French proposals for peace in East Africa.

Eden as league minister has strongly supported the principle of collective security and is a firm believer in league sanctions against Italy for her aggression in Ethiopia.

FLOOD TESTING AND CULLING OF FLOCKS

"The flock testing and culling of blood under the hatchery regulation has been fairly well completed for this season. Applications for this service must be received in the office of the Poultry Branch, Department of Agriculture, Edmonton, by December the 31st. Applications will be accepted after this date.

This year approximately 100,000 birds will be tested which will amply supply the hatcheries of this Province."

Council Sets Price on Bldgs. Owned by Town

achasers to Pay . at Least Three Years Taxes

Council met in regular session last Monday evening. Mayor Brydie, Moore, and Newnam were present.

Offers were presented for certain town buildings but after some discussion it was decided that not less than three years taxes would be accepted for any town building.

Several applications asking to take advantage of the Tax Consolidation Act were received. Some were accepted and others were left over until word was received from the Dept. of Municipalities after the proposed new Act was introduced in the legislature.

A letter was read from the unemployment commission asking for particulars as to which form of relief the council wished to adopt. On motion of councillors Moore and Kindahl the council adopted the new form in which the province pays $5.00 and the town $2.50 per month for married couples. Over this amount the town and the legislature each pay 50 per cent.

A letter was read from the relief dept. stating that attention had been drawn to that dept. by the local M.L.A. regarding conditions of an indigent family in town and asking for particulars. A motion was raised suggesting that the M.L.A. interview council.

A letter was read from the department of Public Works suggesting that the town transfer to the government a lot of land near the Premier brick Co. so that the government could transfer same to the Premier Brick Co. in lieu of and take from Brick Co. to widen main highway. On motion of councillors Moore and Kindahl council agreed to assist along this line.

A letter was read from the Edmonton Glaze Co. claiming the company was being discriminated against in the matter of water rates. The water committee reported that it was the intention to have meters installed in all the plants in town and that the rate would be set at the same as in Medicine Hat for industries. The water committee also recommended that other places where an excess of water was used also have meters installed.

These recommendations were approved by council.

A motion was also passed authorizing Mr. Baird to make necessary changes in the water bylaw and submit same at next meeting of council.

The question of moving the town offices over to the building previously occupied by the Legion, was left over till next meeting.

The usual monthly accounts were approved for payment.

Mr. John Soukup and Miss Elmore Bastian were married in St. Mary's church Thursday afternoon. Rev. Father Fitzpatrick officiated.

The English Language

Cruise To Maintain The Purty Of The Tongue

Missing the English language is defining a living thing of great beauty. It is a corruption that is going on very fast, and to stop the dry rot was the mission Mr. A. P. Herbert set himself when, in Paris, he wrote a series of articles now published as a book called "What a Word!"

His seal is not the tyranny of the penit or the pettiness of the pedant, but is rather a craving to preserve the purity in simplicity and the fragrance of the unforced flower. He finds more and more people attempting to write the language, and is perturbed by those who should cultivate its charm polluting its clarity. The blame for this is laid by pedants and purists off on the press. Heaven alone knows the press sins in the commission of error and bad taste, and cannot defend itself by the plea of always being harried by haste, but it strives to make itself clear, which it apparently cannot, although its accusing pedants seldom do.

Mr. Herbert collected instances of the English language, but did not have to go to the press to find the error. He picked them off trees in the orchards of the circular and plucked the oddest phrase from the strange forest of the learned. He has not had to emerge at the natural error of the uneducated when he had to hold over at the bad English of the educated. Nor did he have to wade through the letters to the editor to find the error, but to loathe the formal correspondence of government offices and rich corporations. Their stilted jargon and meaningless phrases are so common that they easily find ten words which they could get better in five—among the worst, "deliberately," "in the English," which, after all, should be the English of all.

"Four English," says the Times, interpreting the conviction that inspires Mr. Herbert in this crusade—your English is taught, it appears, unless you drag a hundred good words ending in -ation (you do not, for instance, persuade a man to go to hospital, you motivate him to hospitalization), use verbs as nouns and nouns as adjectives, run perfects three deep on to any word that offers, and never use one syllable where four will do. The cream of the joke comes when Mr. Herbert explains the hard-headed, practical opponents of the study of the classics of being the very people who most frequently use, and therefore mislead, words and phrases of Latin and Greek origin, and thereby corrupt the English which they are so anxious to respect."—Winnipeg Free Press.

Modern Matchmakers

Initiation Aids In Finding Husbands For Chinese Women

Family matchmakers, familiar in old China, have a modern counterpart in Shanghai, but the business has passed into the hands of official bureaus and chartered agencies. The new order came to light when the Chinese Benevolent Institution, of Shanghai, announced that it had bands for 18 girls living in the institution. All the prospective brides were rescued by police from abductors or would-be purchasers. The girls were "offered for selection" under stringent rules. No prospective husband was allowed to see the girls before submitting an application with a photograph, to the institution.

Once a man was approved, he was to meet the prospective bride and take his choice. But the chosen girl had to appear for her suit.

Canada's Tobacco Business

Five Years Ago Plant Was Raised Only For Private Consumption

The Montreal Star says: The value of the annual tobacco crop in Ontario as illustrated by the total sales during the two days on which the crop was on the market will surprise most people. More than 20 million pounds have been sold already at prices "well above the appraisal," and there is good reason to believe that the total will be considerably above the eight million dollar valuation put upon the crop in the field by experts.

The interesting thing about it is that this eight million dollars or more goes into Ontario pockets from a crop which was unknown in this province comparatively few years ago. Not long ago the only tobacco grown in Ontario was to be found in the gardens of private experimenters whose consumption of their own tobacco, cured by their own methods, stamped them as hardy pioneers and persons to be avoided in confined space. Now almost 40 thousand acres of the finest soil in southern Ontario is given up to the scientific cultivation of high-grade tobacco and its curing by modern methods has produced a domestic tobacco, which not only goes into the finest blends for local consumption, but has won for itself a profitable and ready market in Great Britain in competition with foreign leaf which, only a few years ago, had undisputed command of the high-class trade.

Canada's tobacco business—39 million pounds in 1933—is another illustration of what can be done by intelligent enterprise in the face of what appears to be unfavorable conditions. It is within the memory of many a living Canadian when we were told that we could not raise wheat in the "North-West." It takes a very sturdy pessimist to be sure of anything that "can't" be done nowadays.

Trade With New Zealand

Many Things Being Bought From Canada In Larger Quantities

New Zealand is buying from Canada increased quantities of motor vehicles, tires, newspaper, canned fish, silk and artificial silk, pine-groceries, fur, gun boots, iron wire, leather footwear, agricultural machinery, cottonseed and mineral beans, and other machines, a comparison of figures for the first six months of this year as compared with the same period of 1934 shows, according to traffic officials of the Canadian National Steamship, a great portion of the products enumerated being carried in vessels of the line in the direct Canada-Australia-New Zealand service. Canadian exports to New Zealand reached $8.1 per cent. of the total imports. More Canadian radio receiving sets and electric stoves were also sold.

Construction contracts awarded throughout Canada during October totaled $14,925,100, an increase of $12,000 over the total building permits issued during the previous month.

Use Of Phosphate

The Effect Of Phosphate Fertilizer On Grade Of Wheat

In spite of consistent increased yields from the use of phosphate fertilizers in certain sections of Western Canada, a criticism has been made that their use results in a lowering of the market grade of grain by reducing the size of the kernels. To determine the truth of this complaint, the point is being studied at the Dominion Experimental Station, Scott, Saskatchewan. Samples have been taken from plots where different rates of phosphate fertilizer were applied on summer-fall, after determining the weight per bushel of the threshed sample, the kernels were passed through a set of sieves which gave the percentage of kernels in five different sizes. The work on this question to date gives indications that the effect on grade depends on the rate of growing season.

In an average season, the yield weight per bushel and size of kernels were increased when the rate of phosphate fertilizer was drilled in with the seed. In a season of low yields the weight per bushel was decreased over two pounds per bushel, approximately 80 per cent. of the kernels were in the smaller size, and the yield per acre was increased four and a half bushels. In years of late summer frosts such as 1928 and 1933, quite a percentage of the unfertilized crops were seriously damaged by yield and grade materially lowered, while fertilized crops produced higher yields and grades, thus greatly increasing their market value. The general conclusion is that in areas where phosphate fertilizer definitely increases yields, only in very dry seasons will the grade be adversely affected. This suggests that in districts where fertilizers give beneficial results a light rate of phosphate be used every year instead of trying to guess the seasons which might promise maximum results from its use.

A Mathematical Certainty

Coasting Massacres Restore Life To Asia Indian Plains

In India at the end of September people just saw unfamiliar and rain-coats with not merely the hope of conjecture, but the plain mathematical certainty that they will not come again, even once, before the following mid-June; and that during that time they will be utterly unacquainted with that induced by the all-permeating heat.

In the London Sphere we read: "Heat alone, in its way, is a continuing with a continental climate; and as all-seeing Providence has ordained that it shall be hot, or at times hot, between midwinter with a blue and cloudless sky, and midsummer when the heavens have slowly turned to a heavy canopy of molten yellow brass, the heat increases unchecked. Every scrap of moisture is drawn up out of the soil, and the land where even the rare wind-gusts assail you with the breath and odor of a brick tin, just parched and baked."

At about the summer solstice, the tremendous upward lift of this super-heated air reaches its climax. The equilibrium of the higher atmosphere is upset. An immense wall of thinning air is crumpled over the surface of the land, and the whole vault of heaven heaves itself to adjust the balance, and right across the Indian ocean to far-away Madagascar the cooler sea-breeze, air currents halt, for of massed artillery on the march, it is India.

Up from the southwest they creep, and the leagues on leagues of ocean, accumulating in their stride the tremendous evaporation caused by the scorching sun, over land water: till the cloud-masses gather in a dense phalanx and, sweeping onward, hard with the rattle and clatter of massed artillery on the unprotected coasts.

Throughout India life springs up, and America, in the same manner, and every growing thing, to take answer the torrent of moisture. As you walk you can almost see them grow. Mrs. Beatrix, bird, replicates stand in the downpour soaking in new life.

By mid-September the attack begins to abate, and by October the rain has dried away in a succession of sultry and sultry ground. The purity of most stocks is above reproach, and it is only in the odd years of low yield that some minor crop has been lost.

Occidental Typewriting

Japanese Stenographers Have 2,000 Characters To Feel With

Stenographers who work that the 47 Japanese characters which are used are plenty to punch, should be glad that they do not follow their counterparts in Japan.

The Japanese stenographers of typewriters have to struggle with a keyboard having 2,000 characters to be picked off at hand.

The slugs have individual compartments in a sliding tray. The stenographer must acquire a knack in picking out those individual slugs of the Katakana or Hiragana forms. Characters which once were pictured have been reduced to their simplest forms on the typewriter and now represent ideas only when placed in sound and thought sequence.

When the knob is moved directly over the selected character, pressure is exerted. A metal arm pushes the type up, passes its face across a tiny ink roller and against the pen which is in a drum. The drum shifts and revolves as the letter progresses.

The stenographer must about the same as an English-language machine.

Proving Of Seed Stocks

Elite Seed Verified For Purity Every Four Years

The rules and regulations of the Canada Seed Growers Association make it necessary for growers of elite seed stock to have their seed stocks verified for purity every four years, or more frequently if necessary. Each spring the secretary of the association gathers in the seed stocks of the various growers who have elite seed, and half of each sample is given a number and submitted to the Cereal Division, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa for a growing test.

At the Central Farm, these samples are sown in five-row plots which provide on the average 1,500 to 1,600 plants for testing. As soon as the plants are six to eight inches high, the assistant in charge of the particular crop pulled wheat, oats or barley, as the case may be, inspects the plots and notes characters in the plot which may be abnormal for the variety concerned. Then, at one-week intervals until harvest time, and particularly just after heading, close watch is kept on the plots and any "off-type" or suspicious plants are tagged with small labels. The "off-type" or "off-type" may not really be off type, but, from experience, it has been found that suspicious plants are often the start of a break-up in the strain. Then, at harvest time, any heads marked earlier in the season are pulled and put away for close, critical examination in the laboratory. The centre of every plot is pulled as a further test, not only of the grower's seed stock, but also of the one responsible for the seed. As a further test, the suspicious, marked heads are sown and a check made on the resulting progeny. This test is very rigorous, and the results are frequently justified, and one finds that a diversity of types result from this test.

The Cereal Division is pleased to report that, during the past few years, due to these frequent tests, there are very few off-type heads found, compared to the conditions pertaining when this verification test was first originated.

The purity of most stocks is above reproach, and it is only in the odd years of low yield that some minor crop has been lost.

Science Unlocks Mystery

Light Columbus Saw Was Luminous Matter Emitted By Worms

The night before Columbus discovered America he saw a light that appeared like that of a candle some distance away in the darkness. The light mysteriously disappeared, and finally disappeared, according to the legend of Columbus' ship.

This story has caused much speculation. It is interpreted as a light on land, thus indicating a certain course, and by others a light in the water, thus indicating a certain course.

The light was observed only during the third-quarter of the moon's cycle, and the moon was in this phase, according to Columbus' records.
